Academic Interest

Research work on Morph of Bengali Language. 'Byakorangato Rup' i.e. Grammatical Morph of Bengali Language has significant and unique features. The origin of Bengali Language is not only Sanskrit Language. The language Family of Austroasiatic, Dravidian and Tibeto-Burman are also origins of Bengali Language. For this reason grammatical morph of the Bengali are not used like Sanskrit language. The grammatical morph as gender inflection has distinctive features. Grammatical morph which makes male words has more intensity (the energy in per squire unit) than grammatical morph which makes female words. Bengali Language is not like inflectional Language as Sanskrit. The explanation of Bengali grammatical morph we finds resembles with Inflectional language and agglutinating language.
